Endinet NV, a Dutch energy distribution company in the regions of Eindhoven and Haarlemmermeer, was acquired by Alliander NV, the Dutch energy distribution company for a consideration of EUR 712 million.

The city of Eindhoven owned an 83% stake in Endinet while the balance stake was owned by other municipalities in the region of Eindhoven.

Network company Alliander manages regional energy networks and supplies network-related services in the field of complex energy infrastructure.

The acquisition will enable Alliander to enhance its presence in Netherlands' energy network market and to increase the use and supply of renewable energy in Netherlands.

Clairfield Partners in the Netherlands (Boer & Croon) was exclusive financial advisor to Endinet.
